OAKLAND TWO WAYS

YOU DON'T HAVE TO SETTLE FOR THE TRADITIONAL - OR, RATHER, YES YOU CAN. IN OAKLAND, YOU CAN HAVE YOUR FOOD WHATEVER WAY YOU WANT.

Oakland is known for being a bit outlandish. In that way, we'll excuse a visitor for thinking you can get anything too traditional here. Oh wait ... Surprise! Turns out the chefs here can not only do deviled eggs, ravioli, and roast beef but they've been perfecting their techniques for decades. Then there are those chefs who like to, you know, disrupt things like macaroni and cheese and chicken wings. We don't judge. Choose the style that suits your mood:

IF YOU WANT...

SEAFOOD	BARBECUE	SLOPPY JOE-STYLE SOUL-WARMING SANDWICHES	MEXICAN	PASTA

OLD SCHOOL, GO TO...

Scott's Seafood on the waterfront in Jack London since 1976.	Everett & Jones flaming the fires since 1973.	Brown Sugar down home in West Oakland since 2008.	Doña Tomás pioneering Temescal since 1999.	Genova Deli fattening Temescal up since 1926. Mangia!
--	---	---	--	---

AND TRY...

The famous Dungeness crab and seafood cioppino, and fresh shucked oysters.	Beef brisket over oak chips with a little or a lotta goop (it's a special sauce), and cornbread.	Pulled barbecue pork sandwich with spicy cabbage slaw, and an Arnold Palmer.	Carne asada, a grilled bavette steak with shishito peppers, black beans and tortillas.	Meat ravioli with Nonni Gravy (crushed tomatoes, porcini, and sausage).

NEW SCHOOL, GO TO...

Jack's Oysters on the waterfront in Jack London since 2014.	Hawker's Fare sharing meals Asian-family style since 2011.	Juhu Beach Club in a Temescal strip mall since 2013.	Nido Kitchen on the outer edge of Jack London since 2013.	Homeroom fattening up the same town (Temescal) since 2011.
---	--	--	--	--

AND TRY...

Wild salmon bahn-mi with veggie chips, and fresh shucked oysters from the East Coast and the West.	Gai Yang, or barbecue chicken Thai style, with spices, lemongrass and sweet chili sauce, with a side of chicken fat rice.	A pork vindalated pav, a pulled pork slider with vindaloo barbecue sauce, cilantro yogurt slaw, and a glass of Darjeeling Ltd.	Tasajo asado, grilled steak with Oaxacan chorizo with guacamole, quesillo, queso fresco & chile pasilla salsa.	Gilroy Mac, made with gouda, sharp pecorino and roasted garlic.

Booze
BOOM

OAKLAND'S TRUE SPIRIT CAN BE FOUND IN ONE OF THE TAP OR TASTING ROOMS.

Sure, California wine country is nice, but a day of wine tasting there requires a well-laid out plan, particularly on the weekend. To go wine tasting in Oakland? It simply requires desire.

In case you didn't know, Oakland has a dozen tasting rooms smattered around the city, predominately in Jack London Square. All of them together form the Oakland Urban Wine Trail.

It's true, you won't see any vineyards out back - the grapes that make these wines come from better-known places (Napa, Sonoma) - but you also won't see any pretention. The person tasting alongside you is more than likely a local on the happy hour trail; the winemaker is not part of a dynasty but city folk. "It feels more like you're having a glass of wine in a friend's living room," says Larisa Martiniak of the wineries in the city. She works at Two Mile Wines, a tasting room in the Uptown neighborhood.

The co-owner and winemaker of Two Mile, Adam Nelson, presses, barrels and bottles varietals like Syrah, Pinot, and Sangiovese a couple doors down from his tasting room in the 25th Street Collective, an incubator for the maker crowd.

"You'd be shocked to discover what's inside a warehouse on Auto Row," says Martiniak, referring to the tons of grapes from Paso Robles, Napa, and Sonoma being stored behind closed doors.

The warehouses in Auto Row, and in Jack London, are ideal for storing equipment, barrels, and grapes, which are trucked in from Napa, Sonoma, Santa Ynez, Santa Maria, and Paso Robles, among others. Stage Left Cellars even goes as far north as Oregon. That's the freedom of making in Oakland, says another winemaker. We're not bound by allegiance to a certain area—as winemakers who live in certain wine countries have to be.

As of fall 2015, Two Mile is also forging another spiritual path. Nelson will start distilling and bottling gin in the warehouse space. Oakland Spirits is the second for the city. First came Wright and Brown Distilling Company. This grandpappy of the scene started in summer 2015 in West Oakland, the first since Prohibition. Since WB is making barrel-aged spirits, including rye and brandy, only time will tell.

If you are thirsty right now, though, catch the BART to Fruitvale. Steps from the station is the Jingletown Jazz Room, a tap room that is as fun as it sounds. Brewers Morgan Cox and Steven Lopez moved their fermentation facility for Ale Industries to Oakland from another East Bay city in 2012.

"I lived in Oakland and saw how the city was becoming much more maker centric. I wanted to be a part of that 'Can Do Spirit,'" Cox explains of the move.

Fruitvale wasn't the first choice for location, but once Cox saw the neighborhood, he fell in love with its strong heritage and family culture. Generations have grown up here. "Parents are taking their children to get ice cream at the same place where they got ice cream as a kid."

The move to Oakland immediately had Ale Industries using their creativity. To meet air quality regulations for a new boiler, they were going to have to pay more money than either partner had. They decided to make it all run on biofuel. The delivery vehicle carrying cases of Golden State of Mind, Cherry Kush, or East Bay IPA? It's running on vegetable oil. Now, that's soooo Oakland.

A woman with short brown hair, wearing a purple chef's coat, stands in a kitchen. Behind her is a large wooden sign with the word 'SHAKEWELL' carved into it. The background shows a bar area with various bottles and equipment.

SHAKEWELL

MENUS THAT TAKE YOU ON A CULINARY TRIP

CHEFS JEN BIESTY AND NELSON GERMAN COOK FANTASTICALLY DELICIOUS FOOD THAT IS GROUNDED IN OTHER CULTURES. EAT IT AND TRAVEL AFAR.

You could eat brunch at Shakewell. It is, after all, the most popular meal at the Lake Merritt restaurant. Chef Jen Biesty's famous twist on chicken and waffles is ordered obsessively: chicken and churros. Did you, too, feel that pang, imagining yourself biting into a pillow-like, yet crusty churro draped with buttermilk syrup? Do brunch, though, and you could miss the essence of the Shakewell experience: the well spiced, piquant even (sriracha yogurt), Mediterranean small plates, followed by a bit of bomba, a rice dish with various topping, like pork belly, cascabel chili glaze and chicharrones. You wouldn't want to miss that. Ditto for alaMar. At lunch, the Dominican rice bowl with blackened tilapia's got a kick. But dinner? That's the true saucy score. Platters of manila clams with Mexican chorizo, or peel 'n eat barbecued Gulf shrimp, or a whole fish with Romesco sauce to share among friends.

All we can say is that we're glad these two New Yorkers found their way to the West Coast. Since the two have traveled all over the world and chose Oakland as the city to settle in in 2014, we put them on the spot with a few fill-in-the-blank questions. (They had nothing but nice things to say.)

has taught me

SHAKEWELL: Bold flavors and spices.

ALAMAR: That there is inspiration to be found in the street food of other cultures. That there's inspiration to be found within my own roots and that I can represent this authenticity through art, whether it be food, music, writing, etc.

OAKLAND
would have my HEART if I took off the MENU

SHAKEWELL: Chicken and churros. A creative twist to the traditional chicken and waffles. Avocado toast for brunch. The freshest avos, with sea salt, olive oil, and cilantro.

ALAMAR: Tender braised angus oxtail, with the tamari-spiked sauce sopped up with Firebrand Artisan sourdough bread. I learned the secret to making oxtail from my mother.

_____ in OAKLAND my FOOD is better/different

SHAKEWELL: Oaktown Spice Shop. It has introduced me to spices from around the world, like powdered Limu Omani. Whole limes, from the country of Oman, are brined in a salt-water solution, then dried in the sun. We use it on shrimp dishes and in rubs and marinades. It has a Cyprus citron lemon sea salt; the flakes are lemony.

ALAMAR: Authentic people. The menu is my personal story through food. It's not about being fancy with small portions. It's about nostalgia through food.

On your DAY OFF,
WHERE do you
explore the FOOD?

SHAKEWELL: In East Lake (east of Lake Merritt). There's a large Asian population, so a lot of flavors. It reminds me of what the Tenderloin in San Francisco used to be. Champa Garden has a Laotian version of Thai dishes like pad Thai. Chai Thai Noodle is great for Thai's chan pad poo, or tom yum. There's a Burmese restaurant called Grocery Café, a combo Asian grocery market and restaurant.

ALAMAR: I like chefs that tell their story through the menu. At Juhu Beach club, (chef) Preeti Mistri modernized Indian street food. Nido is another great restaurant where you can taste how real the food is. How authentic it is to the chef.

7 MEALS IN 3 DAYS

YOU CAN'T LEAVE OAKLAND WITHOUT RAVAGING A FEW OF THE ICONIC DISHES THAT HAVE PROPELLED THE CITY ONTO THE NATIONAL FOOD STAGE. WELL, YOU COULD LEAVE. BUT YOU'D REGRET IT.

YOUR EATING ITINERARY

{ FRIDAY P.M.
// Margherita Pizza }

This pizza and pasta house is in a building that once repaired footwear, thus the name of the restaurant, Boot and Shoe Service. Chef Charlie Hallowell operates three restaurants in Oakland, two of which wood fire pies (the other is Pizzaiolo). This energetic, quirky restaurant pushes out beautiful, blistering pizzas and pours brilliant cocktails. (3308 Grand Ave., (510) 763-2668)

{ SATURDAY A.M.
// The Naughty Cream Doughnut }

Doughnut Dolly is the delicious playground of Hannah Hoffman, who logged many hours at Chez Panisse as a child (her mom was the pastry chef). Hoffman soaked it in. Today, her pillowy doughnuts, lightly dusted with sugar, are piped with homemade fillings, like the crème-fraiche-and-vanilla-bean naughty cream. (482 B 49th St.; (510) 338-6738)

{ SATURDAY MIDDAY
// A Chicken Sandwich }

Bakesale Betty, aka Alison Barakat, has elevated the humble chicken sandwich to art. Just look at the lines that span the length of a block, don't worry it moves quickly. Barakat, a Chez Panisse alum, bakes the torpedo roll that is filled with spicy slaw, jalapenos, and a lightly battered, seasoned chicken breast. Juices ooze from the roll's seams. (5098 Telegraph Ave., (510) 985-1213)

{ SATURDAY P.M.
// The Bowl of Ramen }

The Ramen Shop has been on fire since three Chez Panisse Alums opened it in 2013. Deep ceramic bowls come filled with flavorful broth, handmade ramen, perfect and chewy, and other tasty ingredients like the Shoyu-marinated egg and California seaweed from Mendocino County. The cocktails and desserts should not be skipped. (5812 College Ave.; (510) 788-6370)

{ SUNDAY A.M. }

// Chicken and Waffles

It's like peanut butter and chocolate, a happy accident, a plate of sweet heaven. At the Home of Chicken and Waffles, while we appreciate the chef's nod to health with a less caloric version (grilled chicken on a bed of lettuce and other veggies), opt for Renaldi's Request. It's two pieces of Southern fried chicken atop two waffles with butter and syrup. Should you need visuals to guide you through the many versions of this dish, each is hand painted on the wall. The kitchen serves until 4 a.m. on weekends. (Home of Chicken and Waffles, 444 Embarcadero W., (510) 836-4446)

{ SUNDAY MIDDAY }

// The Burger

Chris Kronner is a legendary burger man who uses not one single shortcut to pull together the Kronnerburger. The dry-aged, grass-fed beef comes with a side of roasted bone marrow, from which you scoop the briny fat, spreading it on your burger or homemade bun or right on your finger. (4063 Piedmont Ave., (510) 823-2371)

{ SUNDAY P.M. }

// A Michelin Star

Commis, the house of chef James Syhabout, is known as the spot in Oakland that earned the star for the city first. The clamor for reservations is well earned. Syhabout spent kitchen time at El Bulli in Spain, Fat Duck outside of London, and the Bay Area's Coi and Manresa. His heritage—Chinese, Thai, Oakland—is highlighted in the dishes that comprise the prix fixe. (3859 Piedmont Ave., (510) 653-3902)

OAKLAND

FOOD without BORDERS

With so many different cultures converging in Oakland, you may find a dictionary helpful to translate the wonderful dishes.

Some people may consider this a dare. But really, no dare necessary to dive into these plates of originality that were brought to Oakland by chefs whose heritage is in many cases across oceans, deserts, and mountains. Fresh California ingredients combine with ancient traditions. The result, a medley of food without borders. One of the benefits of living in a melting pot is that you get to lick the pan.

WHEN THE PHOULARIE ARRIVES, ASK FOR SHADO BENI AND TAMARIND AT MISS OLLIE'S.

Translation: When the fried split-pea and okra fritter arrives, (pronounced po-lor-ee), be sure to get an extra dose of the chutney-like sauce made with an herb called shado beni. It's common name is culantro, not to be confused with cilantro—shado beni is a stronger version. Tamarind is a sweet fruit with a sour jaw-watering tang. Miss Ollie's is in Old Oakland. (901 Washington St.; (510) 285-6188)

POP OVER TO TIAN JIN FOR XIAOCHI. THE ONE TO ORDER IS THE JIANBING GUOZI, 煎果子

Translation: Order at the takeout window of this dumpling house in Oakland's Chinatown. Xiaochi are the Chinese version of tapas; pronunciation isn't the easiest, but roughly ssshoo-choo, where sshoo rhymes with cow. The absolute bomb is the pan-fried pancake, essentially a very long crepe wrapped and folded around two crullers—one, tangy with spice; the other, sweet. Cash only. (989 Franklin St.; (510) 459-6265)

CHAPULINES ADD A NICE CRUNCH – AND LOADS OF PROTEIN – TO GUACAMOLE VERDE WITH MILTOMATE, SERRANO, CILANTRO, AND QUESO FRESCO. IF YOU HAVE ANY LEFTOVERS, IT TASTES GREAT WITH THE AXIOTE RUBBED COCHINITA PIBIL TACO WITH XNI PEC.

Translation: Shall we start at the bottom to warm you up? We all know the taco. Roasted baby pig seasoned with axiote paste is the star of this one. The axiote is Maya for achiote or annatto seed, which imparts color and a subtle flavor. At Calavera, it's mixed with other ingredients like sour orange for flavor. Xni pec, literally dog's nose in Mayan, is a hot, hot, hot sauce that'll make your nose wet from the heat. The green guac is seasoned with tomatillos (miltomate), serrano peppers, cilantro, and a soft cheese. The crowning glory, chapulines, are toasted grasshoppers, a popular snack in Mexico's state of Oaxaca. (2337 Broadway; (510) 338-3273)

»» FIND YOUR OWN WORDS

Discover Oakland's unique language by continuing the journey with a roasted corn tea and banchan at the Korean Fuse Box (2311 Magnolia St.; 510/444-3100), where they "bleed kimchi." The beef tongue burger at Hopscotch infuses chef Kyle Itani's Korean roots (1915 San Pablo Ave.; 510/788-6217). Those sea lovers going meat-free will love the taste of an octopus melt, sea-bean tempura, and corn nuts with seaweed salt at Salsipuedes (4201 Market St.; 510/350-7489). Our souls are satisfied with the neck bones' special on Wednesday with a side of cornbread at Lena's (1462 High St.; 510/842-3510). Simple satisfaction comes from Chinese hand-pulled noodles at Shan Dong (328 10th St.; 510/839-2299). Cafe Colucci beautifully translates the Ethiopian styles of wot, tibs, fitfit, or firfir, as well as expressing the flavors of berbere and kibbe. (6427 Telegraph Ave.; (510) 601-7999)
